

The Benefits Of Quality Rolling Shutters

CHARLES AND TRACIE ZUSCHNITT, OWNERS, MIAMI SOMERS COMPANY

see firsthand the limitations of today's window and door products.

✓ Performance ratings or design pressure is a measure of the limited amount of pressure a window or door is designed to withstand when closed and locked. A quality storm protection system is worth its weight once the rain is driven into your home. Storm protection systems will virtually eliminate the pressure on your window or doors and will give you the security and peace of mind when you need it most.

The rolling shutter is the most common type of exterior storm protection. They have been adapted and modified for the Mid-Atlantic coastal region by using only stainless steel, aluminum or plastic components to eliminate oxidation and ensure a long, trouble-free life. Rolling shutters combine hurricane and Nor'Easter protection with ease of use. Built for high velocity impact resistance, rolling shutters can be controlled comfortably from inside your home with an optional motor. Design changes in the rolling shutter include considerably smaller profiles creating a more esthetically appealing look.

The benefits of rolling shutters go far beyond the obvious.

- Shutters are a proven burglary deterrent.
- Shutters control noise.
- Shutters protect your window and door glass not only from breakage but also from the cumulative etching effects caused by wind driven salt and sand.
- Shutters prevent heat loss in the winter and provide excellent protection from the sun's harmful UV rays and bright light.

As we draw near the end of another relatively inactive hurricane season lets not forget the saying "not having a plan is a plan to fail." From Maine to Florida, storm protection systems are in high demand. The winter storms of 2010 have changed how we will prepare for nature's fury. Whether driven by Mother Nature, building codes or insurance companies, our storm protection systems will stand up to the test.
